

COUNTY LIBRARY PROPOSED, WITH CARNEGIE LIBRARY TO BE A DISTRIBUTING CENTER

A county library system, under the state law as provided by the last legislature, will probably be established in Weber county within a very short time, steps having been taken by Mary E. Downey, who is connected with the state board of education, and has charge of establishing the system in the various counties, to get the matter acted upon by the city and county commissioners, in co-operation with the Carnegie library board.

A special joint meeting of the two boards of commissioners will be held next Thursday or Friday, at which time the details of the plan will be discussed.

Miss Downey was in Ogden this morning and called on each of the boards, giving an explanation of the plan, which has been adopted in several counties.

Utah is the nineteenth state to adopt the county library plan by legislation, and the matter is to come up for consideration before the Idaho legislature at the next session. Idaho is now an island state in the plan, all states surrounding having adopted the plan.

Under the plan proposed to be adopted in this county, the Carnegie library will function as the center or headquarters, and books will be purchased by the library in addition to those regularly obtained. Books of appropriate character will be deposited in each school of the county, and also in the other libraries of towns, such as Huntsville and North Ogden. Each of these places already has a library and would benefit the same as the schools.

A parcel post provision is also incorporated in the plan, so that residents anywhere in the county may send for books and return them by mail. And any citizen of the county may apply at the library in Ogden for books and receive them.

Any community in the county will be permitted to establish a library association and have books supplied, provided the association is incorporated. The corporation will be held responsible for the books.

Miss Downey stated this morning that she was delighted with the reception accorded her in Ogden by both city and county commissioners and by the library board. The library board, she said, is enthusiastic over the prospect of enlarging the stock and sending good books to more citizens, as it means a broadening of culture among the people generally.

The city commission already has made provision by making a very small tax levy, which has made it possible to place the books in the city schools. It is stated that the tax levy necessary to cover the plan will be but a small fraction of a mill for the county.

HE'S IN CONTROL OF STAFF OF LIFE

JULIUS H. BARNES

Barnes is between two fires. He'll get the kicks of the public if it thinks bread costs too much. He's got to settle with the farmers under the government guaranteed price for the 1919 crop with a billion dollar fund to handle. For Barnes is the new United States wheat director. And he stays at the head of the grain corporation.

John G. Heywood And E. A. Littlefield Speak to Women

The Women of American Patriots were entertained at the meeting yesterday by addresses from Captain John G. Heywood and Sergeant E. A. Littlefield of this city.

Captain Heywood's subject dealt with the part the women have played in the great world war, and his delivery was masterful. Throughout his talk he paid very high tributes to the women.

"It was the women that gave the men for the army, and it has been the duty of every officer to see that the men were returned to their women as they had been given," he said.

In closing, Captain Heywood paid a fitting tribute to the gallant service that Sergeant Littlefield had given in the great war.

Mrs. F. N. Hess sang "Americans, They Come."

Sergeant Littlefield talked on the attitude of the allied women toward the boys in the service. He said that everywhere that he had occasion to go, women were always as cheerful as possible and contributed greatly to the upkeep and morale of the armies. Of all the kindness extended to them by the peoples abroad, that of the Belgians exceeded all others. He told how the French had struggled so valiantly but were forced to retreat time after time until the spirit of that brave people was slowly drooping lower and lower in the conviction that nothing could stop the Hun. He told of the magic effect that the coming of the Americans had upon the French.

Axel Nylander rendered a number of selections on the flute.

Wilson Requests An Immediate Return of Cable

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President Wilson has been asked by Postmaster General Burleson to approve the immediate return of American cable lines to their private owners.

In announcing his action today, the postmaster general said he hoped restoration of the properties could be effected by May 10.

Governor of Federal Reserve Bank Dies At Home in Alameda

SAN FRANCISCO, April 28.—James Kennedy Lynch, governor of the United States twelfth federal reserve bank in this city, died early today at his home in Alameda, near here, from an attack of heart disease.

Mr. Lynch was a son of James Lynch, pioneer to California of 1846, and started his banking career with the First National bank here in 1877 as a teller. He advanced to the position of vice-president of the institution and later became director of the twelfth federal reserve bank, representing the bankers of this district.

The success in reaching quotas in the four Liberty loan campaigns in the west was due largely to his energy and activity.

GREEK SOLDIER BACK; WINS CROSS OF WAR

MONTPELIER, Idaho, April 27.—John Xenios, young Greek section hand in the Kemmerer railroad yards, has returned from a year's service overseas wearing the coveted Croix de Guerre, awarded him for exceptional bravery in the fighting at Alsace-Lorraine. Xenios has just been discharged from the army base hospital in New York and is recuperating from a leg wound and gas. With two companions Xenios attacked a Hun raiding party, using rifles against the German machine gunners. Thirty of the Huns yelled "Kamerad" in vain and fifteen were captured.

Walter Griffith Is Operated Upon at Camp Dodge

According to a telegram received by Mrs. Mildred Griffith of Riverdale last Saturday afternoon, her son, Walter Griffith, was successfully operated upon at the base hospital at Camp Dodge. Sergeant Griffith entered the service May 15, 1918, going in a special training contingent to the University of Colorado at Boulder. He was later transferred to Camp Dodge and was assigned to the artillery. Because of previous experience he was then assigned to the service of supply department at the camp.

Before leaving Ogden he engaged in the real estate business with A. F. Maguire.

Forfeits $250 to City by Failing to Appear in Court

Jack Perdue gave $250 to the city this morning through his failure to appear in the city court and answer to the charge of having liquor in his possession.

Saturday night John Doe, a business man, was found intoxicated. He was in a talkative mood and he told Captain of Police O. H. Mohlman where he got the liquor. He said that he could get more by calling a certain number on the telephone.

John Doe called up the number at the Marion and asked if Jack was there. Yes, Jack was there and could bring a pint of liquor in a few minutes and meet the purchaser at his place of business. Perdue appeared, but he recognized Captain Mohlman and made a dash. The officer started in hot pursuit. Two shots in the air soon brought Perdue to the arm of the law.

When taken to the police station, Perdue deposited $250 cash bail for his appearance in court this morning and then he failed to appear.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT

Material for This Department Is From the Information Service of the Utah Agricultural College.

(By Byron Alder, Poultryman, Utah Agricultural College.)

At this season of the year those interested in poultry raising are especially concerned with the problems of hatching and growing the chicks. The difficulty of hatching makes the problem of raising the chicks even more important. From 40 to 50 per cent of those that are hatched die under present conditions largely because of poor method of feeding and brooding. A better understanding of these problems and a little better care during the early part of the chicks' life would eliminate a large part of this loss.

Essentials of a Good Brooder. There is no best brooder for all conditions. A good brooder should be dry, easily cleaned, well ventilated without draft, roomy, safe from fire, a protection against chick enemies, easily operated with no dark or inaccessible corners, a warm place for the chicks to huddle and a cooler place for feed and exercise. The brooder should be all ready for the chicks at the time they are expected to arrive. Too often this is not the case, and it results in the loss of many and in some cases all of the chicks. Waiting for the chicks to arrive before getting the brooder ready is about the same as locking the stable after the horse is stolen.

Feeding Baby Chicks. Chicks should not be given feed of any kind until they are from 48 to 60 hours old. Chicks shipped or bought from hatcheries are ready for feed when received. The first feed should be given sparingly and often. Feed on a clean floor, or board with a cloth around the edge to prevent waste, or on a piece of burlap stretched and pegged to the ground at the corners so that the chicks will get nothing except that which is fed. Feed five or six times a day or about every two or two and one-half hours.

Starting Feeds. Start with a drink of sour skimmed or buttermilk. Keep this before them at each feeding the first week. The first four or five days feed a mixture of rolled oats (oat meal) rubbed fine with a slight sprinkling of fine grit or clean coarse sand. When the milk is not available hard boiled eggs rubbed up fine should be added at the rate of about two eggs a day for each 100 chicks. A layer of dry alfalfa leaves, chopped clover, or dried lawn clippings should be scattered in the brooder and should be cleaned out and a fresh supply added every two or three days. Sand, shavings, etc., should not be used on the floor the first week or two or the chicks may eat enough to cause serious injury. About the fifth day add a little cracked wheat and cracked corn, gradually reducing the amount of oat meal and bran. After the seventh day leave out the bran in the above mixture and keep a dry mash in a feed hopper always available to the chicks. This mash should be made of bran—100 pounds, shorts—50 pounds, chopper barley or oats—25 pounds, fine charcoal—2 pounds, and fine salt—1 pound. When milk is not available stop feeding the eggs and add 25 to 30 pounds of beef scraps to this dry mash.

Water Very Important. Milk or water should be kept before the chicks at all times from the first. Where milk is easily obtained, use this alone the first week, and milk and water after that time. Keep the milk vessels clean, since dirty rancid milk may be just as injurious as good clean sour milk is beneficial.

Developing Feeds. After two weeks the oat meal may be eliminated and a scratch feed given twice a day composed of 100 pounds of wheat and 50 pounds of chopped corn. Keep dry alfalfa, grit, fresh water, and a little fine charcoal always before them.

When the chicks are three to four weeks old get them out in the orchard or give them free range where they can get plenty of growing green food. Chopped oats, chopped barley, and the dry mash above should be kept in feed hoppers always available. The scratch feed or whole grains can be fed in hoppers as the chicks will get plenty of exercise while foraging.

Prevention of Disease. Avoid sloppy or wet feeds. Keep the brooder, litter and chicks always dry. Wet litter and feeds or dampness in the brooder are the worst enemies of the chicks. Don't put chicks of different ages together in the same brooder. Don't keep the chicks in the same runs as the old or mature stock. Feed regularly all the chicks will clean up, but don't overfeed. Keep the brooder clean and free from mites, and the chicks free from lice. Thousands of chicks are lost each year because of damp, unsanitary brooders and surroundings. Other brooder evils are overcrowding, poor ventilation, over-heating, chilling, bad methods of feeding, and carelessness or neglect. A good brooder, good feed, and good common sense are necessary for success.

BILLION DOLLARS SUBSCRIBED TO VICTORY LOAN

WASHINGTON, April 28.—One billion dollars had been subscribed today to the Victory liberty loan, according to unofficial reports. It was considered doubtful, however, that the official figures which the treasury recognizes would reach the billion dollar mark by tonight.

At the opening of the second week of the three weeks' campaign, report to the treasury today reported a tendency among hundreds of communities which are approaching or have passed the goal set for them, to oversubscribe, in compliance with the treasury's latest request.

It will be necessary to raise $315,000,000 subscriptions a day between now and May 10, the last day of the campaign, to subscribe the $4,500,000,000 total of the loan.
